GEN. FITZ LEE ON VIRGINIA.

Gen. Fitzhugh Lee was called upon at his rooms, Barum's Hotel, New York, by a Herald reporter, to whom he made the following statements in regard to the work of the Virginia Emigration Society:

"Virginia being considered the mother of the country, I considered it unfair that this great people should allow her to suffer on account of past offences. Those are dead issues, and we do not care to revive them. We wish to rejuvenate the old State, and we think the best way to do it is to develop her agricultural resources. We can only do this by inviting immigration. We propose to offer to emigrants as good or better than they can find in the West.
We have no grasshoppers, no destructive droughts to destroy our crops. We have thousands of fertile acres of land, that will produce as much grain as the soil can be found in any other State, and they can be bought cheap.
And the society proposes to deal directly with the settler, and not through agents. And it may as well be stated here that no officer of the society receives one cent of compensation, either in the way of salary or commission. I must say that I am agreeably surprised at the cordial reception of myself and associates at the hands of the people of New York, and I have yet to hear one dissenting voice in regard to our proposition for the revival of the old State. The Northern people seem to be unanimous in the opinion that Virginia should once more take her rank among the leading States of the Union, and it is our firm intention by honest and fair means to induce immigrants to settle in our State, to cultivate our soil, develop our interests, and by so doing, put the State on the footing which she had before the war. We have a genial climate, with no extremes of heat or cold, and a soil the richness of which is equal to that of any State in the Union. In regard to our State government we consider it as good as as that of any other State; our rulers are as honest and as able to govern wisely as are those of other States. Quiet reigns throughout the length and breadth of our section, and new settlers need have no fear of being disturbed in their possessions, or in their pursuit of wealth and happiness. The moral standard of our people we consider equal to that of any people in the land. We are law abiding, we punish our offenders with the same rigorous justice that is meted to offenders in the North.
Our citizens and towns have no record of ruffianism beyond what can be found in the cities and towns of other States.

"It is a popular fallacy that Northern people cannot come South and pursue their legiti-mate business without being molested. We are not in love with carpet-baggers, but we are with people who will come among us and help us to once more put on a sound basis the glorious old State of Virginia. There is not a heart or a hand in the State, but what will be open and extended to those who will come among us to buy our lands, help us to make the State what she should be, and to be our people. We don't ask a man his nationality; we simply invite him to come, to settle among us, to be a law abiding citizen and to grow with the State.
The mineral resources of Virginia are too well known for me to comment on. Nor do I suppose that a very large majority of those immigrants we trust will come among us will care to do more than to cultivate the soil. Our State tax is light, being only fifty cents on the $100, and the payment of our State debt we are going to demand shall progress to an honorable and satisfactory end. The society of which I am President is composed entirely of property holders who, as I have stated before, will deal directly with the settlers. I desire to lay this fact before the people that they may draw their own conclusions. We believe that, as our State progresses, the people of the North will feel the progression and be benefited. We can pay our debts if we succeed, and we can afford to enter your markets once more and purchase those commodities from your manufacturers that are hardly available, except among the laboring classes of the South. Another thing that recommends our State to immigrants is our accessibility to the principal markets of the Union. Our water and inland facilities for reaching these markets, it is well known, are not surpassed by any Southern State.

"In regard to the negroes I consider that those of Virginia are as intelligent and industrious as can be found. There is not the least in-superiority spirit exhibited, and the negroes deeply deplore the late troubles farther South.
There is a friendly spirit existing between labor and capital, but we lack as much of the latter as we have of the former. The negroes are being educated and are beginning to comprehend the fact that upon their own exertions must they depend for their support and advancement, and, understanding this fact, they are at work industriously and honestly.

"In regard to our free school system, I consider it quite up to the standard of the other States, and we intend to maintain it so, and not again to have the cry go abroad that ignorance is the bane of the people of our section of the South. We desire to place ourselves in such a position that we shall be looked up to.
We want good feeling between all sections, and we are willing to work to promote that feeling and for the general public good. In our desire to meet with success we are aware of the fact that we cannot sit with folded hands, but must work to obtain the precious boon, and this we are willing to do, and we cordially invite immigrants and all others who desire to come and settle in our State. We promise them good government, a hearty reception, good free schools, cheap and fertile acres, and a climate the fame of whose salubrity is worldwide. We have in our State some of the finest mineral springs in the world. They are easy of access from any part of the State, and the extortionate prices generally found at places of resort by pleasure seekers or invalids are not the rule at any of the Virginia springs. I desire particularly to bring these facts before the Northern public, for, as I stated before, we need capital, and capital we must have; and it is in a great part from them that we expect to get it. If the people will come and see us they will find these statements true, and I have no doubt but that they will stop. All we ask is that they come and satisfy themselves." mond, Va. Price $1 per bottle.

Send for Circulars.

[From Rev. E. T. Baird, Secretary of Publication of Presbyterian Church, July 27, 1874.
Richmond, July 27, 1874.

The Xanthine is the only hair dressing I have ever used which has removed the dandruff from the scalp and made my hair soft and pliable.
It has also restored my hair to its natural color, and by occasionally using it as a hair dressing, I have no doubt it will preserve the color.
E. T. BAIRD.

[From Rev. Charles H. Head, D. D., Pastor Grace Street Presbyterian Church, July 29, 1874.
Richmond, July 29, 1874.

At the suggestion and presentation of a friend, I have used one bottle of Prof. Her's Hair Restorative, "Xanthine." It has accomplished in a very brief time and without any perceptible unpleasant or injurious effects, all that is claimed for it as a restorer of the natural color of hair turning gray.
CHAS. H. HEAD.

[From J. W. Lockwood, Cashier, National Bank of Virginia, Richmond, Va., June 25, 1874.
Dear Sir—I used on my hair about one-third of a bottle of the Xanthine, and the result has been its restoration to its original color.
J. W. LOCKWOOD.

To the Proprietor of the "Xanthine": I have occasionally used your compound, known as "Xanthine," with results perfectly satisfactory as to cleaning the scalp, removing the dandruff, and restoring its color.
Respectfully yours, W. B. ISAACS, President Bank of Commerce.
